Chapter 1 Overview of Messages

This chapter explains the format of messages.

1.1 Message Format

This section explains the format of messages.

- Output format

- Components

1.1.1 Output format

The message output format is as follows:

Format of messages returned to an application

errorType: messageContent (messageNumber)

Format of messages output to the server message log

SQLSTATE: date [processID]: [internalCode-1] user = userName,db = databaseName,remote = clientIpAddress(portNumber) app = applicationName errorType: messageContent (messageNumber)

See
. . . .
Refer to "PostgreSQL Error Codes" under "Appendixes" in the PostgreSQL Documentation for information on SQLSTATE.

Note
. . . .

- Notes on monitoring messages output to the server message log

    Use SQLSTATE to monitor server messages, noting the following:

    - Configuration method

        Refer to "Error Log Settings" under "Setup" in the Installation and Setup Guide for Server for details.

    - Notes

        - The user name, client IP address (port number), and application name may sometimes be blank.

        - Multiple message numbers may be output.

- Notes on monitoring messages returned to an application

    You can output SQLSTATE to a message to be returned to an application. The following explains how to configure the settings for outputting SQLSTATE and gives cautions to be observed when doing so.

    - How to configure the settings:

        - In the SET statement, set the log_error_verbosity parameter to VERBOSE.

        - For an application that uses the C language library, use the PQsetErrorVerbosity function to set message redundancy to PQERRORS_VERBOSE.

    - Cautions

        - SQLSTATE is output only to messages to be returned to applications that use the C language library.

- In some cases, userName, clientIpAddress(portNumber), and applicationName may be blank.

- Multiple message numbers may be output.

- If the email address "pgsql-bugs@postgresql.org" is output to the message and the cause of the error cannot be identified, contact Fujitsu technical support.

Example

Message output to the server message log

```
3D000: 2013-07-10 19:41:05 JST [13899]: [1-1] user = symfo,db = symfo,remote =
127.0.0.1(51902) app = [unknown] FATAL:  database "symfo" does not exist (10571)

1.1.2 Components

This section explains the components of a message.

Error type

The error type indicates the type of error denoted in the message.

The error type will be one of the following:

- Information (INFO, NOTICE, LOG, DEBUG)

  This error type denotes a notification from the system, not an error. There is no need to take action.

- Warning (WARNING)

  This error type denotes that no error occurred but confirmation or action is required by the user. Take the actions described in the "Action" section of the message.

- Error (ERROR, FATAL, PANIC)

  This error type denotes that an error has occurred. Take the actions described in the "Action" section of the message.

- Supplementary information (DETAIL, HINT, QUERY, CONTEXT, LOCATION, STATEMENT)

  This error type denotes supplementary information relating to the previous message. If the message was output in English, the error type will also be in English. (Detail, hint, query, context, location, statement)

Message text

The text of the message reports the status of the system or an error in the system.

The notation "@numeric character@" that appears in "Chapter 2 Symfoware Server Messages " indicates an embedded character string. A character string is output to a message that is actually output.

Only if 'ja' is specified in message locale, messages Symfoware Server added are output in the language of the specified locale.

In other message locale, the messages is output in English.

Message number

The message number uniquely identifies each message. It is output as a string of five single-byte numeric characters. Use the message number that is output to find the explanation of the corresponding message in this document. The message numbers may change, so do not use them as keywords for monitoring.

No message number is assigned to messages output by a PL/pgSQL RAISE statement.

Only if 'ja' or 'en' is specified in message locale, a message number is output additionaly.

In other message locale, the messages number is not output.

This error usually means that PostgreSQL's request for a shared memory segment exceeded your kernel's SHMMAX parameter. You can either reduce the request size or reconfigure the kernel with larger SHMMAX. To reduce the request size (currently @1@ bytes), reduce PostgreSQL's shared memory usage, perhaps by reducing shared_buffers or max_connections.If the request size is already small, it's possible that it is less than your kernel's SHMMIN parameter, in which case raising the request size or reconfiguring SHMMIN is called for.The PostgreSQL documentation contains more information about shared memory configuration.

To reduce the request size (currently @1@ bytes), reduce PostgreSQL's shared memory usage, perhaps by reducing shared_buffers or max_connections.The PostgreSQL documentation contains more information about shared memory configuration.

This error does not mean that you have run out of disk space. It occurs either if all available shared memory IDs have been taken, in which case you need to raise the SHMMNI parameter in your kernel, or because the system's overall limit for shared memory has been reached. If you cannot increase the shared memory limit, reduce PostgreSQL's shared memory request (currently @1@ bytes), perhaps by reducing shared_buffers or max_connections.The PostgreSQL documentation contains more information about shared memory configuration.

This error does not mean that you have run out of disk space. It occurs when either the system limit for the maximum number of semaphore sets (SEMMNI), or the system wide maximum number of semaphores (SEMMNS), would be exceeded. You need to raise the respective kernel parameter. Alternatively, reduce PostgreSQL's consumption of semaphores by reducing its max_connections parameter.The PostgreSQL documentation contains more information about configuring your system for PostgreSQL.

a) If the COMMIT process is not executed after update, add the COMMIT process.

b) If the total number of update records in a single transaction is high, split it into short transactions.

c) If search was conducted for a long period of time after update, execute COMMIT after update or review the search SQL statement.

- If none of the above situations applies, perform the following:

a) Confirm that the database server has not stopped.

b) If the database server is starting or stopping, re-execute the command after the database server starts.
